

SLIGHT GAIN FOR BRITISH AT THIÉVAL

FIGHTING IN SOMME REGION CONTINUES WITH UNABATED VIOLENCE, SAYS REPORT.

FRENCH STILL ACTIVE

Operations Resumed North of the River Where They Have Cleared Bank to Clercy—Germans Keep Up Verdun Attack.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] London, July 6.—At Thiéval, on the Somme front, we made a further slight advance and captured a number of prisoners, the war office announced today.

"South of the La Basse canal, after the discharge of gas and smoke, we made some successful raids into the enemy's first line, in one of these, capturing forty prisoners, a trench mortar and a machine gun. In another raid, a machine gun emplacement was destroyed, many Germans were killed and some prisoners taken.

"There was no change of importance on the rest of our front."

French Activity Continues. Having captured the whole German second line south of the Somme, from the river to Vailly, the French have resumed operations north of the river and have cleared the bank almost to Clercy. The French have established themselves at Thiéval farm and also at Clercy.

The British are still engaged all along their front from Ardecourt to Gommecourt. Notwithstanding heavy German counterattacks they have been able to maintain all ground gained and extended it at some points. As the German trenches are occupied evidence accumulates of the steady execution of artillery. In some cases 30 per cent of the defenders were killed in the terrific shelling. The British losses vary. Certain formations attacking the defenses where machine guns remained undamaged, suffered heavily. Others captured positions with very slight losses.

Instead of compelling the Germans to keep their position at Verdun, the Anglo-French offensive seems to have increased their determination, possibly in the hope of preventing the Germans from sending reinforcements to the Somme.

Passed Quiet Night. Paris, July 6.—Last night was generally quiet north and south of the river Somme. The French made a statement of the war office. There were a few local engagements north of the Somme during the night in the German zone. The French captured a kilometer north of them. The French also captured a wood south of the Somme. The night passed in quiet. A German attack on Clercy was repulsed. The French have captured seventy-six cannon and several hundred machine guns.

There was no infantry fighting on the German front. Their war office says the Germans are attempting to bombard the cathedral at Verdun.

French Report Progress. Paris, July 6.—The French offensive has been the province of the last twenty-four hours. In counter-attacks they were repulsed. A large area of territory was occupied and capture of guns and ammunition have been made.

In the German zone, the French advanced with remarkable uniformity. The ground gained varied each day. The French are now firmly installed between the German second and third lines of defense over a front in excess of seven miles.

Say Losses Small. That French losses have been comparatively insignificant is indicated by the fact that the French war office has requested the German war office to return to their own zone the two army corps that made the first assault on the German positions last Saturday morning. One of these corps distinguished itself before Verdun in February, after having won laurels in the battle of the Marne and at all parts of the front where there has been heavy fighting. The other corps was comprised chiefly of colonial troops and it is also indicated among the French army organizations.

German Claim Victory. Berlin, July 6.—Attempts made by the French yesterday to advance in the wood southwest of Clercy, in the Verdun sector, were repulsed, according to an official statement issued today. Similar efforts made by the French to recapture Damouville battery were unsuccessful.

The French troops yesterday made slight advance in the narrow front of Aisne district south of Ville-Aux-Bois, north of the German zone. The attack was not successful and cost the French serious losses.

On Russian Front. Petrograd, July 6.—An official communication issued by the general headquarters last night, says: "On the western front in the region of Vuoksa-Galovskai, a massive enemy formation delivered counter attacks. We took two officers and 257 men prisoners.

"During a hostile counter-attack against the village of Kostukovka, one of our regiments, having allowed the enemy to approach within one hundred yards, the enemy was annihilated. We took two officers and 257 men prisoners.

"Half way on the railway line from Delatyn and Korosmezo, we captured 100 prisoners and a machine gun. In several places on the left wing of the Riga front, we captured prisoners and machine guns. Further German attacks were repulsed by our army.

"In the region north and southeast of Baranovitch, the fighting continued. According to press information, one of our divisions took twenty-seven prisoners and one thousand prisoners. Yesterday a hostile aeroplane flew over Minsk and dropped thirty-one bombs, wounding three men, seven horses and two children.

BRITISH GUNS AND LEADERS THAT FIGURE IN HUGE OFFENSIVE

British guns on western front. General Sir J. Wolfe Murray (left) and General Sir Douglas Haig.

During the past week the British on the western front have shown that they as well as the Germans have fighting qualities. Important gains have been made, and the end is apparently not yet. The British armies are under the command of Sir Douglas Haig, and one of his ablest generals is General Sir Wolfe Murray, K. C. B., R. A. The opening of the war found the British with inferior guns. This inferiority has slowly been overcome, and the British artillery is now reported to be equal to that of their foes.

great quantity of rifles, cartridges, bombs and tents."

Shift Tonic Lines. Berlin, July 1, via London.—On the eastern front, repeated Russian attacks on positions held by troops of General Count Von Bothmer, along one sector of the front in Galicia have been repulsed. Tonic lines are partially transferred to the neighboring sector, the war office announced today.

German Counter Attacks. Berlin, July 5.—Between the Ancre brook and river Somme and region north of the river, says today's German official statement, fighting has continued. Minor progress made by British troops near Thiéval, it is added, was balanced by counter attacks. Further to the south the British succeeded in obtaining a foothold in an advanced trench salient.

The headquarters staff announces the small village of Hem in Somme valley has been evacuated by the Germans. Belloy-en-Santerre, southwest of Peronne, has been captured by the French. Fighting around Peronne, it is added, has come to a standstill.

Uster Division's Valor. Press Camp, British Army in France, July 6.—The story of the Uster division in the first day's battle of the Anglo-French offensive is now excessively told. The division captured the parts of a difficult attack in the northern section of the offensive. Its trenches were disadvantageously located in the German zone. The division's batteries had a leveling effect through curtains of shrapnel fire, in the face of machine guns and under withering fire from machine guns in a village, the division captured the most of the lines, shouting "No Surrender, and 'Remember the Boyne,' and started for the second line. Still under cover of the first line, the division continued until they gained a strong redbout on the summit of the ridge. There those who had survived, dug in again against German counter attack and machine guns and rifle fire from two sides. They held on until they had no more bombs or cartridges.

Temporarily shut off from other supplies by the German capture of shell fire, they had to fall back, bringing 200 prisoners to the German first line of trenches, passing through curtains of fire in a series of attacks, established themselves and stuck until help came.

Troops Most Valiant. An English battalion from Yorkshire and Lancashire caught in the same fashion so far as known, fought almost to last man in holding the Germans north of the Ancre while battalions further south made uniform progress.

All reports of prisoners agree the Germans expected the real center attack would be north of Ancre. Regular German counter attacks and snail's pace of guards or any other regular regiments in battle of Ypres or in history of British army, surpassed gallantry of these Kitchener battalions, which kept pressing on toward the objective set for them when half their numbers were down.

Already the gains in the battle line are being filled with drafts. Again and again officers and men of battered battalions were heard to say they hoped the army would continue to press the offensive, while the enemy was staggering.

The Anglo-French offensive in Picardy has had another day of substantial progress, outstanding features being resumption of the French advance north of the Somme and capture of German second positions there.

Preparations Unhindered. Complete preparations have been made, partly in the sector ritually unhindered by the Germans while French forces south of the river pushed up level and got a thorough grip on German second position. This was accomplished by ejection of the Germans from the part of Bataillon they still held, and the capture of their communications between Estrees and Belloway. The northern troops then emerged from their trenches and dashed forward a good mile.

The German second positions have been so demolished by artillery, they were unable to make strong resistance except at the village of Hem which was strongly fortified. There each house was fiercely disputed, but hard fighting the village was won as was Monacu farm to the south-west.

The Germans are beginning to react more vigorously as reserves arrive, particularly south of the Somme and the French advance there is hotly contested.

CARRIZAL DEAD BACK ON U. S. SOIL

CAPTAIN BOYD, LIEUTENANT AND EIGHT TROOPERS ARRIVE TODAY AT EL PASO.

ALL IN SINGLE GRAVE

After Repulse of Americans Mexicans Gathered Dead and Threw Them Into Ditch With Hasty Covering.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] El Paso, July 6.—The bodies of Captain Charles T. Boyd, Lieutenant Adair and seven troopers of the Tenth cavalry, killed at Carrizal, were brought to El Paso at 8:30 a. m. today. Only the bodies of the two officers and Private Dewitt Rob Rucker have been identified.

Eight of the Americans were exhumed from a single grave. The undertakers who brought back the bodies said the dead had been hastily gathered on the field of battle and cast into a ditch, and the ditch was then filled in.

No Battle Honors. Captain Boyd, Lieutenant Adair and six troopers stripped of their uniforms were mixed indiscriminately in the dirt. The body of the ninth trooper was located two miles distant from the others. He was wounded, and apparently had staggered himself across the gravelly waste beyond the town.

Scenes in sharp contrast to those of a week ago, when the Carrizal prisoners were brought from Chihuahua City and turned over to General George Bell Jr., marked the return of the American dead. In Juarez the event was scarcely noted, while in El Paso on a day of possible inspection, quiet and subdued, replaced the cheering throng that greeted the twenty-three of the Tenth on their return.

Shot Through Eye. Examination of bodies showed Captain Boyd was shot through the right eye and Lieutenant Adair's death resulted from a wound in the breast.

The storm moved in from the north and west, and the Gulf of Mexico at an estimated velocity of about eighty miles an hour.

Great fears were felt that it would cause much damage. Owing to wire communication being cut off from the stricken region, the extent of damage could not be ascertained early today.

The weather bureau issued a bulletin at eight-thirty this morning stating that the center of the hurricane appeared at that time to be moving northwest between Jackson and Meridian, Miss., at a velocity of about forty-eight miles an hour and apparently lessening in intensity.

CLAMOR IN GERMANY URGES RESUMPTION OF SUBMARINE WAR

Vigorous Agitation Conducted With Argument That Promises to United States Were Temporary and Conditional.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Berlin, July 6.—The campaign in favor of the resumption of a full-fedged submarine war on commerce goes energetically forward. It was expected that with adjournment of the Reichstag and the dispersal of politicians to their homes for the summer, this agitation by the navy league publicists, conservatives and part of the national liberals would pass this climax and gradually lose its intensity.

On the contrary, reports from all sections of the country indicate that the agitation is continuing with unusual vigor, both above and below the surface. Never a day passes without articles in various newspapers to remind the people that according to the German note, the modification of German submarine methods merely was temporary and contingent upon a modification of the British blockade.

Advocates of the unrestricted torpedo appears at every political gathering regarded as suitable soil for their state. Various newspapers in sympathy with the movement have almost daily a rubric for what they call "British postal robbery and even and against submarine is called the fact that the blockade has not undergone the slightest modification since the dispatch of the latest German note.

Rebels Vessels Torpedoed. Berlin, July 6.—The admiralty today gave out the following report: "One of our submarines sank an enemy submarine destroyer in the North sea on Tuesday last."

The submarine U-3, which carried to Carthagen, Spain, an autograph letter from Emperor William to the interned Germans, has returned carrying out its tasks successfully. On this journey she sank an armed merchant steamship, Herault, capturing its gun.

The vessel referred to as a submarine destroyer probably was one of a large fleet of small boats which patrol the North sea on lookout for submarines.

The sinking of the French steamer in the Mediterranean by submarine was reported from Madrid on June 25. Thirty-six of the crew reached Castellon, Spain.

English Report. British admiralty today issued the following: "One of our mine sweepers in the North sea was hit by a torpedo from an enemy submarine on Tuesday. It is slightly damaged, and is now in harbor."

Examination of bodies showed Captain Boyd was shot through the right eye and Lieutenant Adair's death resulted from a wound in the breast.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Washington, July 6.—Formal acceptance of General Carranza's proposal that differences between the United States and the de facto government of Mexico be settled by direct negotiations, will be dispatched soon to Mexico City. This was decided by President Wilson today at a conference with Secretary Lansing.

Secretary Lansing leaves tomorrow for a month's vacation. It was not stated today whether he would prepare the reply to Mexico before his departure, but indications are it will go forward within a day or two at the most.

Report of Vital Statistics Shows 424 Marriages Performed in Twelve Month Period.

Births in Rock county exceeded the deaths by 330 for a year's period, closing on June 30 last, according to the report of State Health Officer C. A. Harper in which he has certified to County Treasurer Livemore the amounts due, town, city and village health officers, physicians and clergymen, for registering the vital statistics of the county.

What the Doctor Asked

One of the questions the examining physician for life insurance is apt to ask the applicant whose heart is skipping beats or is fluttery is—

"Do you use coffee?"

The reason coffee is suspected is because the physician knows that the drug, caffeine, in coffee disturbs the nervous system, races the heart, and is responsible besides for conditions which often become serious.

It's a good thing to stop when one reaches the danger zone. It is better still, to safeguard health and avoid trouble by quitting coffee and using the famous pure food drink

POSTUM

This delightful beverage is made of finest wheat, roasted with a little wholesome molasses, and while it tastes much like mild Java coffee, it contains only the nourishing goodness of the grain—no coffee—no drug—no harmful ingredient whatever.

There are two forms of Postum. The original Postum Cereal must be boiled. Instant Postum—a soluble powder—is made in the cup without water—instantly! Both forms are equal in flavor, and cost about the same per cup.

Thousands of people have found the way to renewed health by a change from coffee to Postum. There are no coffee "questions" in Postum.

Mr. Boyd and family will take up their residence in this city next month. At the present time he is attending the Lake County summer school for physical directors and upon the completion of the course he will come here and begin active work.

Mr. Boyd comes here highly recommended from his former positions and the Janesville association is fortunate in securing his services. For five years he was physical director at La Crosse, at the same time C. R. Rogers was secretary of that association. He has also been in charge of the physical culture work at Dallas, Texas. At the same time he had the call from the local association he received orders from Superior. The reason for taking charge of the work here is because there is greater opportunity to build up this division.

INDUSTRIAL SCHOOLS HAVE MANY STUDENTS

The Local Evening and Continuation Schools had 649 Students Enrolled the Past Year.

Janesville's industrial, continuation and evening schools, under the direction of P. C. Hill, during the past year have had a decided success, both in the number of students enrolled and the work accomplished. The total enrollment for the past year in all the classes of the different schools has been six hundred and forty-nine.

The evening schools opened for the first work on the night of October 27th. Many grown people joined the different classes. The attendance was bettered with in the month of January on account of the epidemic of la grippe that swept the city. The scholars getting behind in their work on this account started over again with a renewed interest. Mr. Anderson's class in advanced bookkeeping had the highest attendance record for the season. They were a little more fortunate in not having the sickness interfere with the attendance. The percentage of attendance for the year was ninety-six. There was only one case of unavoidable absence.

Twenty-six instructors were employed for the many classes. People from all sorts of trades and occupations took advantage of the evening schools. Upon enrolling each person was asked to state their occupation, and those doing so were as follows: Housekeepers, 55; factory workers, 23; clerks, 20; mechanics, 6; merchants, 6; bookkeepers, 37; dressmakers, 6; stenographers, 13; managers, 5; maids, 6; banking, 5; native workers, 10; meatcutters, 3; at home, 20; librarians, 2; telephone girls, 2; farmers, 2. In the all day school, conducted at the Lincoln school building, the boys and girls attending were given three hours of regular school work and three hours of industrial work. During the past year eighty-five have been enrolled in these classes. There were three groups of children who had to attend the continuation school four hours per week. According to the law the following class of children must attend this school: boys and girls between the ages of 12 and 14 who are working on a permit; boys and girls between the ages of 16 and 17 who are working; and third, those children between the ages of 14 and 16 who are at home but not attending the regular graded schools of the city. These students are known as the four hour a week students.

One hundred and forty-two students were enrolled in this division during the past year. Of this number 30 were employed in stores, 63 in the factories or mills, 5 as house maids and 12 employed as delivery boys. These 142 came from fifty-one employers in the city. Mr. Hill said this morning: "There has been splendid co-operation on the part of the employers and we wish to thank them for their uniform courtesy and united co-operation."

Mr. Hill has been asked by many people as to whether four hours a week of schooling is worth while for the boy or girl who is earning wages. "Attending school after the child comes to the wage earning age costs good money," said Mr. Hill, "but people are pretty generally agreed that it is worth all it costs and more added. The boy or girl who comes to school four hours a week for the time required by the laws of Wisconsin does not lose quite a month's wages and gets somewhat more than a month of school in the year. After watching these pupils for three years, it is my judgment that there is no one month in the boys' or girls' schooling that is nearly as valuable to him as the four hours per week. When we come to think of it as eleven months of work ad one month of school, we shall appreciate that every child is entitled to at least that much."

A "GET TOGETHER" SESSION

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]

Chicago, July 6.—The formal program of the Prohibition National committee convention, to be held at St. Paul, Minn., tomorrow, today, stipulates a "get together conference" with reform leaders in the Republican, Democratic and Progressive parties on July 18 convention preliminaries, July 19, a big parade on July 20 and nominations July 21.

Daniel A. Polling of Boston, the temporary chairman, will deliver the keynote address.

Women prohibitionists will play an important role in the convention and will seek to align with them the 4,000,000 women voters of other parties. The National Women's party will have a representative present.

Considerable trouble, however, is in prospect before the Democrats finally settle on their candidates. William F. Wolfe of LaCrosse will probably be named as the candidate for United States senator. Daniel Cady of Fortage has also been prominently mentioned in opposition to Wolfe.

Burt Williams of Madison will be one of the leading candidates for the nomination for governor. Charles Karel of Milwaukee is expected to push a man in opposition to Williams.

LIST NEARLY READY TO BE FORWARDED TO GOVERNOR PHILIPP

Total of Sixty One Names Have Been Secured for Proposed Militia Company.

Possible members of the proposed Janesville militia company to be organized as a portion of the Wisconsin National Guard, must make haste and have their names on the list now being circulated before Monday morning at which time they will be turned over to Mayor Patterson to be forwarded to Governor Philipp as a formal application for the establishment of a company here.

Up to noon today there were sixty-one names on the list and a dozen more were wavering whether to sign or not. The present signatures are merely in the form of a petition although those signing agree to join the militia company when organized. It is absolutely necessary to have sixty-five names signed to the petition before it will be given consideration. In Madison, two companies have been organized and are drilling for service and in Milwaukee several reserve companies are being enlisted. This is true all over the state. While water sent out a hundred and twenty men when its company went to Camp Douglas and Ft. Atkinson and other cities made an equally good showing. It is now up to Janesville to show its loyalty to the state and to secure signatures to enable it to have a company established here.

Danger of the proposed Janesville guard being called into military service on the Mexican border is very remote and even now there is talk of bringing back soldiers already there. The Mexican trouble appears to be about over but this will not interfere with Janesville having a company in the new state guard organization.

Hans Jaette has one list and the other can be found at City Clerk Hammarlund's office and it is hoped that the remaining signatures will be obtained as soon as possible so there will be no delay in having the company mustered into the state service.

SCHOOL BOARDS MEET IN ANNUAL SESSIONS

Well Known School Workers of State Talk at Annual Convention of County School Board Members.

Officers and teachers from the various two hundred schools in Rock county met in their annual convention today, the delegates being held at the high school building. Practically every member of the different rural school boards was present and the session was a decided success. One hundred and fifty school officers and about seventy-five rural school teachers attended the morning and afternoon sessions. A number of prominent state rural school men were present and gave addresses. State Rural School Inspector W. E. Larson and Assistant Superintendent Charles L. White, attending the convention.

The first meeting this morning opened at 9:30 o'clock with an address by Mr. Larson. His talk was on "Things to be emphasized in teaching." He also gave some points on the consolidation and transformation problems of the rural schools. At eleven o'clock Charles L. Harper, assistant state school superintendent, gave a review of the state school laws, emphasizing the most important ones.

The afternoon session at 1:15 o'clock opened with a slightly larger attendance than there was in the morning. During the first part of the session there was a general discussion on the county uniformity of text books. As a closing address of the convention W. E. Larson gave an address on "Powers and responsibilities, and school boards and teachers." The convention as a whole was a great success and the rural school authorities are looking forward to next year's meeting with much interest.

BELOIT PAVING SUIT OPENED HERE TODAY

Taxpayers Seek to Enjoin City From Paying Its Contract Price for Street Improvements.

Judge George Grimm in circuit court this afternoon heard the opening arguments of the Beloit street paving suit, a matter of more or less importance.

George T. Haynes, former alderman, on behalf of himself and other taxpayers similarly situated, sought to enjoin the City of Beloit from paying the City of Beloit and the Good Roads Construction company and W. S. Pace of Chicago, Haynes seeks to enjoin the city from complying with its contract with the construction company under a allegedly void contract. This entails a drastic Wisconsin statute to the effect that a foreign corporation doing business in the state must take out a state license or incorporate in Wisconsin or suffer the penalty of having to carry out its share of the contract which is void on the part of the other party.

M. O. Mout and O. E. Oestreich of the law firm of Jeffris, Mout, Oestreich and Avery are representing the plaintiff, W. A. Arnold, Beloit city attorney. Mayor H. W. Adams, Rose & Christianson of Beloit, aided by Thos. S. Nolan of this city, are handling the defendants' side. Opening arguments for both sides occupied the attention of the court during the early part of the afternoon.

The construction company was awarded five miles of paving contract in Beloit this year. A big share of this work has already been done. Under the present suit the improvement is at a standstill.

Amazing but rarely suspected truths about the things you eat.

CHAPTER 81.

The poison squads which have given scientific or unscientific data to dietitians have proved worthless as a means of determining the true character of any food or food preservative. Short time experiments on healthy adults cannot reveal information that applies to the year-in and year-out experience of the rank and file of humanity.

Under the inspiration of an aroused poison squad, teachers, the school children, familiar with the poison squad cages of the schoolhouse basement will learn that human poison squads have been organized for the purpose of subjecting healthy young men to a diet of adulterated food in the interest of science.

They will learn that after a period of five or six weeks the usual results have been announced, frequently to the effect that the members of the squad "betrayed no noticeable symptoms and experienced no injurious results."

They will learn that such reports have appeared in thousands of newspapers, quieting the public mind, disarming anxiety and suspicion, and sometimes causing the cautious housewife to forget the necessity of watchfulness in selecting her kitchen supplies.

They will learn that these poison squads have never fought it out to the finish, and that the brave youth who have been fed with doses of benzene, borax, copper sulphate, sulfur dioxide, aluminum sulphate, coal tar dyes, hydrocyanic acid, and other food preservatives and ornamentals, have never taken all of these deleterious substances at any one time nor for any one day.

They will learn that the poison squad is always confined to one food drug, never partaking of any other drug during its scientific experience.

They will learn that it has been the custom in the past to disband the squad before any subtle, slow-moving, insidious process might bring about serious injury to its members, thereby saving the food supply from plenty of so-called scientific justification for his assertion that the occasional cry against preservatives, food chemicals, mineral dyes and denatured food is a bugaboo.

They will learn that all the people in the world are not healthy young men, and that all of them do not stop eating at the end of a test lasting five or six weeks.

They will learn that some of the people in the world are babies; some are nursing mothers; some are about to become mothers and some have reached the age where natural vigor is no longer sufficiently active to resist even temporary abuse.

They will learn that notwithstanding the fact that all poison squad experiments have been temporary affairs, there is nevertheless, on a world-wide basis, a permanent poison squad of the United States, 1,500,000 during the last four years.

They will learn that every time the law makes the use of a food chemical legal or every time it winks at an abuse that denatures a food it makes a permanent poison squad of the entire country, not for a few experimental weeks for a few vigorous young men, with a single food chemical, but for the entire lifetime of all the men, women and children in the country, with a combination of all the food chemicals now used legally or illegally by an army of food manufacturers.

They will learn that all the little children of the United States, whether their parents realize it or not, are now in the poison squad, particularly the children of the poor and the unfortunate.

They will learn that when the food-duty of yielding a profit, he does not know into whose hands it will fall nor anything about the physical condition of the individual who will receive his medical wares.

They will learn that through ignorance and selfishness in supplying unfit food for the human family, the drugstore puts his commercial dose into his commercial product and sends it forth to portend its commercial ends are being committed every day.

They will learn that as life was given for some good purpose, life's efficiency should not be lessened by those who exploit the needs of the particularly the natural foodstuffs upon which life depends.

They will learn that of the 250 infants that die before they are one year old out of every 1,000 is born, and of the countless thousands of adults who die before their time, the food manufacturers could be made to realize the responsibility he takes upon himself when he assumes that it is his right to feed a nation with no other object before him than profit to himself.

They will learn that all murders are not picturesque.

They will learn that the slow moving, subtle, insidious undermining of the health of men, women and children is murder.

They will learn that individuals have no right to debate food products, for the food of which they eat is to bring about death, debility, ill health and death to those who depend for health and life upon impoverished food.

They will learn that self-slaughter is given the widest possible publicity, but that the subtle slaughter of the race is given no publicity at all.

They will learn that to hide the guilty of whatever murder is involved in robbing the people's foodstuffs of the elements necessary to sustain life, everything which life depends is sacred, and the juggler's denigrating of man's food supply is sacrilege.

At a time when we are asking that the schools and colleges should teach the relative viciousness and baseness of crime, so that public opinion may proclaim that mob murders and self-murders are the most cowardly and least defensible of all offenses, let us also demand that the schools and colleges teach, with their anatomy and physiology, the meaning of the presence of proteins, carbohydrates, fats and mineral salts in the food, so that any commercial effort to interfere with these elements for the sake of gain against the sacredness of life.

The school children already know that the idea of the sacredness of human life is universal, through the fact that the destroyers of their own lives are denied citizenship by several great branches of the Christian religion.

With their chicken-feeding experience before them they will learn that if the average man, though a stranger, will afford succor to his fellow to prevent a death by violence, it is not too much to ask of him to help prevent the continuance of the modern food crimes, which end so pitifully and tragically.

They will learn that there is something wrong with society when society responds with reverence and tears to the acts of brave men who they serenely yield their lives for the public good, while at the same time refusing to pick up its own little fragments of public duty, just at its very feet, because it does not find that duty gleaming with the golden hue of romance.

The chicken experience will teach the children that if we honor thousands of noble men and women who spend their lives at the hospital bedside in bringing the sick back to health, there is even greater honor due to them who fight beforehand against preventable disease.

production of butter suggests the importance of pasteurization.

There are very few large herds of cattle which do not include at least one diseased cow. This has been fairly definitely established by experts who have made an extended survey of the dairy industry of this country. Many of the cows are severely infected, a fact that is readily comprehended when the condition of diseased cows giving milk up to the moment of their killing are observed in many of our large slaughter houses.

Pasteurization can do nothing to prevent diseases of cattle, but once disease germs make their way into milk or butter they can be destroyed and the milk rendered fit for human consumption and fit to be turned into cream and subsequently into butter by the process of pasteurization.

Pasteurization makes milk and butter safe for the use of children, if the milk contains disease germs. If they do not contain disease germs pasteurization does them no harm.

NEWS NOTES from MOVIELAND

by DAISY DEAN

Octavia Handworth.

Octavia Handworth will be remembered by many who were so interested in the movies before they were so good as many of them now are. She dropped out of sight several years ago, to appear in pictures and on the stage in Europe.

For several years very few pictures made abroad have been able to compete with those made in America.

Now Miss Handworth is returning. She is cast for important roles in some of the new chapters of "Who's Guilty?"

greater Pavlova when they witness her triumph in the scenic spectacle based on Auber's "Mossesniello."

Not only beautiful but also novel effects have been secured with the snow scenes in "The Destroyers," a Vitaphone release at the Beverly tonight. This Blue Ribbon feature is one novelty after another, with an irrepressible demonstration of the vast solitude of some northern landscapes in the winter. This is done as much by the art of suggestion as by the amount of landscape included in the picture. It almost startles the spectator for the idea leaps out at him like a thing of life. This brief picture—just a few feet—occurs about the end of the second reel of the five, and does perhaps more than any other to fix the atmosphere of the story upon all who see it.

BRAND NEW PLOT IN "OSTRICH PLUMES"

One of the seven wonders of southern California, the Castleton ostrich farm, has been used by the David Horsley company for exteriors of a two-reel drama named "Ostrich Plumes." The title may be changed. At this institution there are more than five hundred ostriches. In one scene the beautiful birds of the desert kick a "man" to pieces when he is thrown into the lot in which they are kept.

In another instance, the heroine, Margaret Gibson, rode one of the large birds to secure help to prevent a riot. The story pertains to an order received by a plume manufacturer prescribing a particular shade of blue to secure the tint, and tries to induce an old English dyer to tell him the necessary dyes needed to secure the particular shade. This is refused and the old English dyer is employed. The foreman causes dissatisfaction among the other employees and the body elect the old man. It is at this time he is cast into the den of the kickers, and the daughter rides for help.

Vivian Martin's writing is picturesque, but not easily read. She wrote a friend from the mountains where she has been making "Neil of Thunder Mountain."

The friend thought she wrote that she had learned to "cook pine cones." That was wrong. The friend got it right when Miss Martin wrote again, explaining that it isn't "pine cones," she learned to cook, but "corn pones."

Releases for July include Peggy Hyland in "By Right of Sex," Hazel Dawn in "Her First Assignment," Wallace Reid and Cleo Ridgely in "The Taming of Helen," Dustin Farnum in "Davy Crockett," Blanche Sweet in "The Duke's Daughter," and "The Little Lady Eileen" and Louise Huff in "When Shadows Fall."

Betty Hall, movie beauty, winces whenever she hears the sound of breaking china. She says it reminds her of breaking hearts, the chief difference of course being that broken hearts can be mended so easily.

The Daily Novelette

A BUSY DAY AT HENKEE'S.

—It isn't every baseball twirler who can keep every up to the proper pitch.—Prof. Simp.

The youngest book clerk was dusting off the 408th volume of the World-Wide Encyclopedia, by which time the first volumes had got dusty again. When Mrs. Fronks tapped him on the dust cloth.

"Have you the essays of Lamb?" she inquired.

The youngest book clerk shook his head. "But I can give you Mrs. Pezzer's latest cook book and you ought to be able to find what you want in that," he suggested hopefully.

Five minutes later, while he was still wondering what had made Mrs. Fronks leave so abruptly, a long, mysterious looking man sidled up to him and said in a low voice, "I want the life of Theodore Roosevelt."

"Assassin!" shrieked the youngest book clerk, and hurried the volumes of the World-Wide Encyclopedia at him one by one in rapid succession, until at the 32nd volume, he perceived the villain running out the front door with volume 31 clasped to his breast, where it had landed.

"Such an exciting day," murmured the youngest book clerk, as he sat down on Van Dock's "Seven Million and Four Facts," and mopped his low but throbbing forehead.

QUESTIONS ABOUT FOOD

Q.—Will you kindly advise me what is pasteurized milk and how it is prepared? What is the importance of pasteurizing milk and butter? W. E. A.

A.—Pasteurized milk is milk which has been heated in order to destroy whatever germ may have been present in it, and subsequently cooled. There are two methods of pasteurization—the holding and the instantaneous.

The holding method consists in heating milk to 145 degrees Fahrenheit, keeping it at this temperature for thirty minutes and then quickly cooling it.

In the instantaneous method the milk is heated until it reaches a temperature of 170-180 degrees Fahrenheit and instantly cooled.

The importance of pasteurization has never been more thoroughly emphasized than in the diseased meat cases about to be aired in the courts of Brooklyn.

Not only was tubercular meat passed by inspectors of the New York Board of Health in acceptance of bribes from the large slaughter houses on Johnson avenue, but in numerous instances the udders of diseased cows were found yielding milk after slaughter. This clearly indicated that up to the time they were killed the diseased cows were still engaged in producing milk for human food.

When cows are in lactation, they are milked for two reasons: First, because if the udders are not freed of milk, the cows become seriously ill, and secondly because a regard for economy prompts the farmer to use the milk as a source of revenue.

Orfordville News

Orfordville, July 5.—The Fourth passed off very quietly in the village. During the day but few people were here, but in the evening, after the arrival of the train, the streets were lined, but in spite of this the marsh reports that there was not a single case of intoxication, and on the day following the police court enjoyed a vacation.

Harry Feeder of Clinton and John Reeder of Janesville were Fourth of July visitors here, guests of Ed. Reeder at the hotel.

Burdel Parkerson of Chicago, who has been spending the past few weeks with friends here, returned home on Wednesday.

John Gansel, of Brodhead was in the village for a few hours on Tuesday afternoon, returning to his home in the Green county city by the evening train.

Mr. and Mrs. Orrin Rime are enjoying a visit from Mrs. Rime's brother, of Edgerton.

Dr. S. W. Lacey of Pootville was in the village for a short time on Wednesday afternoon.

Hans Sagen has improved the appearance of his residence on Beloit street by the addition of a porch.

On Tuesday evening a doctor was called to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Eger, where it was found that their little seven year old boy was having an attack of appendicitis. The following morning the little fellow was somewhat improved, so that no operation was performed.

Household Hints

GRANDMOTHER'S SHORTCAKE

Hull and wash thoroughly and drain well one or two quarts of berries, according to number of persons to be served, crush a little and add one-half cup of granulated sugar to a quart of berries and set aside until serving time. It is well to do this some time before.

For shortcake, three cups pastry flour, three teaspoons baking powder, sifted together, pinch salt, two tablespoons hard butter mixed into flour thoroughly, enough sweet milk just so the dough won't stick to the very lightly. Divide and stand out about one-half inch thick, roll into round pie tin. For individual shortcakes, use a biscuit cutter and follow directions the same as for large one; this recipe will make ten.

COMPANY DESSERT

To one-half pint cream whipped add stiffly beaten white of one egg and one cup of jam or fresh fruit and mashed thoroughly with about an equal amount of sugar. In using fresh berries add a little gelatin if very juicy. Pour mixture into coffee can or mold, pack in ice and salt and stand about four hours. If packed in fireless cook kettle it will need no repacking even in the hottest weather. In winter, however, may be used instead of ice. Convenient for Sunday dinner as it requires only a few minutes to prepare and can be done several hours before needed. Serves six people.

STRAWBERRY CREAM

One quart strawberries, three ounces pulverized sugar, juice of one lemon, one-half pint cream, gelatin. Wash strawberries, remove stems and leaves. Boil in water until tender, strain through a sieve. Dissolve the gelatin and sugar in three tablespoons boiling water, using the lemon juice to soak the strawberries. Pour the mixture into the strawberry puree and stir until the stiffly whipped cream. Put into a mold to harden; set on the ice. Turn out and decorate with whole fruit and whipped cream. This can be used for any berries, gooseberries, red currants, etc., requiring to be slightly cooked first before passing through the sieve.

FROZEN PUDDING

One pint sweet double cream, two cups powdered sugar, one quart crushed strawberries. Whip cream until thick. Fold in the powdered sugar and the crushed strawberries and fill a pudding mold, having a tube in the center. Pack in salt and ice. Cover with heavy blanket or old carpet and stand in a cool place for four or five hours, removing ice and salt if necessary. When ready to serve turn out and fill hollow center with sweetened berries.

THE TABLE

Meat. Loaf. Two pounds beef (ground). Five cents worth salt pork, one cup crackers, one egg, two teaspoons salt, half cup milk, one teaspoon pepper, one minced onion. Bake two hours.

Onion "Greens"—Cut tops from green onions into inch or inch and a half lengths; pour boiling water on to cook them; keep water on until tender; then let "drip down" until water is to be seen. Season with butter, cream, salt and pepper, or celery salt if desired. With vinegar or lemon juice this makes appetizing "greens."

Strawberry Shortcake—Put two quarts of capped berries in a colander and pour cold water over them. Remove a few of the choicest ones to be used as a garnish. Cut the others in halves and mix with one and one-half cups powdered sugar. Set away until shortcake is baked. Make a soft dough of two cups sifted flour, three teaspoons baking powder, one-third cup butter, one egg, three-fourths cup salt milk, half teaspoon salt. Divide dough into two pieces, each half inch thick. Spread the layers with softened butter, cut with biscuit cutter, place one on top of other and brush with egg. When done, take layers apart and put in layers of sweetened berries and another on top. Serve on individual dishes with whipped cream and fresh berries. Garnish edge of dish with fresh strawberry leaves.

Blackberry Pudding—Beat three eggs light and stir them into two cups milk. Sift a quart of flour with two teaspoons baking powder and beat this gradually into eggs and milk. Dredge three cups blackberries with flour and stir these into batter. Turn into greased pudding dish and bake, covered, for an hour, then uncover and brown. Eat with hard sauce.

Fruit Snaps—One and one-half cups sugar, half cup molasses, one cup chopped raisins, one cup nut meats, one cup lard, three eggs, one teaspoon soda, half teaspoon ginger, half teaspoon cinnamon, half teaspoon nutmeg, one-fourth teaspoon cloves, pinch of salt. Mix stiff.

TENNIS COSTUME

Sugar And An Ant Hill

I gave my nephew a thoughtful gift of sugar to offer the little creatures and sent him forth. He came back still more excited and full of his adventures than before.

When his family returned from their ride and his small sister with sisterly tact told him what a nice time they had had, he retorted, "Pooh! I had a better one." And it wasn't all idle boasting, either.

The world right around us is full of many infinitely interesting things. To be interested is to be happy. Why not learn to be interested in the little things that are around us? Let us each try to see this world as it is.

JAPS HONOR INDIAN POET

IN MIKADO LAND TO STUDY

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]

Tokio, July 6.—Sir Rabinadrath Tagore, the famous Indian poet, who has come to Japan to study the psychology of its people, has received remarkable ovations here. At each place his train stopped he was welcomed by the people. His path was strewn with flowers and garlands were hung about his shoulders. At one town a party of Buddhist priests boarded the poet's train and performed a service of welcome, burning incense all the while.

The poet will stay several months and as far as possible live a life of seclusion. This will be difficult, for admiration for Tagore and his writings is one of the powerful influences which dominate the Japan of today and the people have arranged everywhere to show their homage.

HEART AND HOME PROBLEMS

By MRS. ELIZABETH THOMPSON
Letters may be addressed to Mrs. Thompson, in care of the Gazette.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am engaged to be married this fall. My fiancée's brother has come to visit him and he will spend his vacation of two weeks here. A week is already gone. I thought I loved my fiancée, but his brother is really much nicer and better looking. He seems to like me, too. I don't know whether to do as he suggests or not. What shall I do?

WORRIED
If your fiancée's brother were not better looking, probably you would not be so interested in him. I think things will adjust themselves before the brother goes home you will realize that even though he is better looking, your fiancée has many other qualities which he does not possess. Don't do anything hasty. If in two or three months you find that your fiancée is a better fit of course it would not be wise to marry him.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) I am a young lady and I am considered by my friends to be beautiful. I have big blue eyes and almost black curly hair. I dress attractively and am of medium size. I do not like to have people say that I am beautiful because it embarrasses me. What can I do to make them stop?

(2) There is a young man who is very attentive to me and buys me expensive presents. He tells me that he loves me, but he has not asked me to marry him. I love this young man. Do you think he takes it for granted which I will marry and think I will understand?

(3) This young man has a birthday in two weeks and I would like to give him a present. He has given me such nice presents that I want to give him something nice. What would you suggest?

(4) I work in an office and recently one of the men asked me to go to dinner with him. I think he is married, but I am not sure. What would you advise me to do?

MAY BELLE
There is a saying that flattery to the face is an open disgrace. Do not blame you for being annoyed and embarrassed. Perhaps if you were to say "Thank you" in a friendly manner the flatterer would consider himself rebuffed and would not make such a remark again.

(2) You should not trust a man who makes you expensive presents. He is telling you that he loves you, but does not ask you to marry him. The presents are probably a bribe to get as much out of you as possible without marriage. Do not accept his gifts nor his love.

(3) Do not give him anything. He will respect you more if you don't. (4) Be on the safe side and don't go.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) I have freckles. What will remove them? (2) What is a good remedy for corns? (3) Freckles are very hard to get rid of. A lotion that helps many people is made from two drams of zinc, one-quarter dram of bismuth, one and three-quarter drams of dextrin, and one and one-half drams of glycerine. Spread the paste upon the freckles at night before going to bed. In the morning remove what remains with a little powdered borax and almond oil. (2) There are several excellent cures on the market. Ask your druggist to recommend one of course if you wear ill-fitting shoes the corns will return.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a married man twenty-two years old, and I work twelve hours a day. Let me tell you how I am getting along. My wife has been going with another man. I take her places, but she does not seem to care for me. What shall I do?

WOULD PROVIDE COTTAGE HOMES FOR RURAL TEACHERS

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]

New York, July 6.—National aid for state normal schools, higher salaries and better pension systems for teachers and better means of safeguarding women in co-educational colleges were the problems discussed by the National Education association in Madison Square garden here today.

President J. V. Crabb of the State Normal school, River Falls, Wisconsin, insisted that schools and colleges of education have been unprepared to meet the demand for trained specialists because they have been "bound and gagged by college practices, traditions and prejudices." The normal school he declares is a national asset even more so than the state agricultural college and should be so treated by the national government in the distribution of national aid for education.

President Joseph Swain of Swarthmore college advocated a reasonable salary increase and a joint teacher assessment and public taxation plan of pensioning public school teachers. Joseph Corlies, Princeton, superintendent of public instruction of the State of Washington, outlined a definite plan by which cottage homes for teachers may be provided in every rural school district.

The progress in Chinese education was discussed by V. K. Wellington Koo, ambassador from China to the United States. Mary B. Howell, dean of women, Mt. Union college, Alliance, Ohio, in an address before the conference of deans of women, advocated close supervision of their recreation hours of women as of their busy hours in co-educational institutions. The nominating committee also elected by the delegates from all states, will report to the conference for the ensuing year at the general session tomorrow.

The Fifty-Seven Kinds of Indigestion. One of the greatest surgeons in America may as well get right down to business here, at the beginning—summed up his wide experience in this fashion:

"A woman who is fair, fat and forty and has a gas, probably has gallstones."

It might be added that she always knows it is potatoes, eggs, fat meat, fresh meat or fruits that produces the distress following the eating of some one particular article of diet is a striking feature in the history of a case of gall-stone disease. Indigestion of this type severe enough to rout the doctor out of bed at night is almost certain to be due to gallstones. The diagnosis, mind you, is not so much a matter of reprisal as of calm next calls of like character occur in the course of a year an X-ray reconnaissance of the field is warranted, to put it mildly.

Indigestion may be real or spurious. Mostly it is spurious. The more you learn about the physiology and pathology of the food tube the less confidence do you place in a diagnosis of genuine indigestion. Also a more perfectly manifest accident just indigestion undoubtedly occurs, but as a frequent or habitual ailment, in a person who has an ordinary regular life, the diagnosis of intestinal indigestion, or acute indigestion, or nervous dyspepsia, or "acidity" is open to serious question.

Every benefit is entitled to one attack of real indigestion and it is the part of discretion for him to grin and bear it. Tough food, however, doesn't explain the habit of indigestion. When one begins to eat his food it is high time to learn what is wrong inside.

Most cases of obstinate or habitual indigestion coming under medical notice belong to one of two classes, all of which are already treated by the gallstone type already mentioned.

ABOUT AGREEN WORM

"The world is so full of a number of things, I'm sure we should all be as happy as kings."

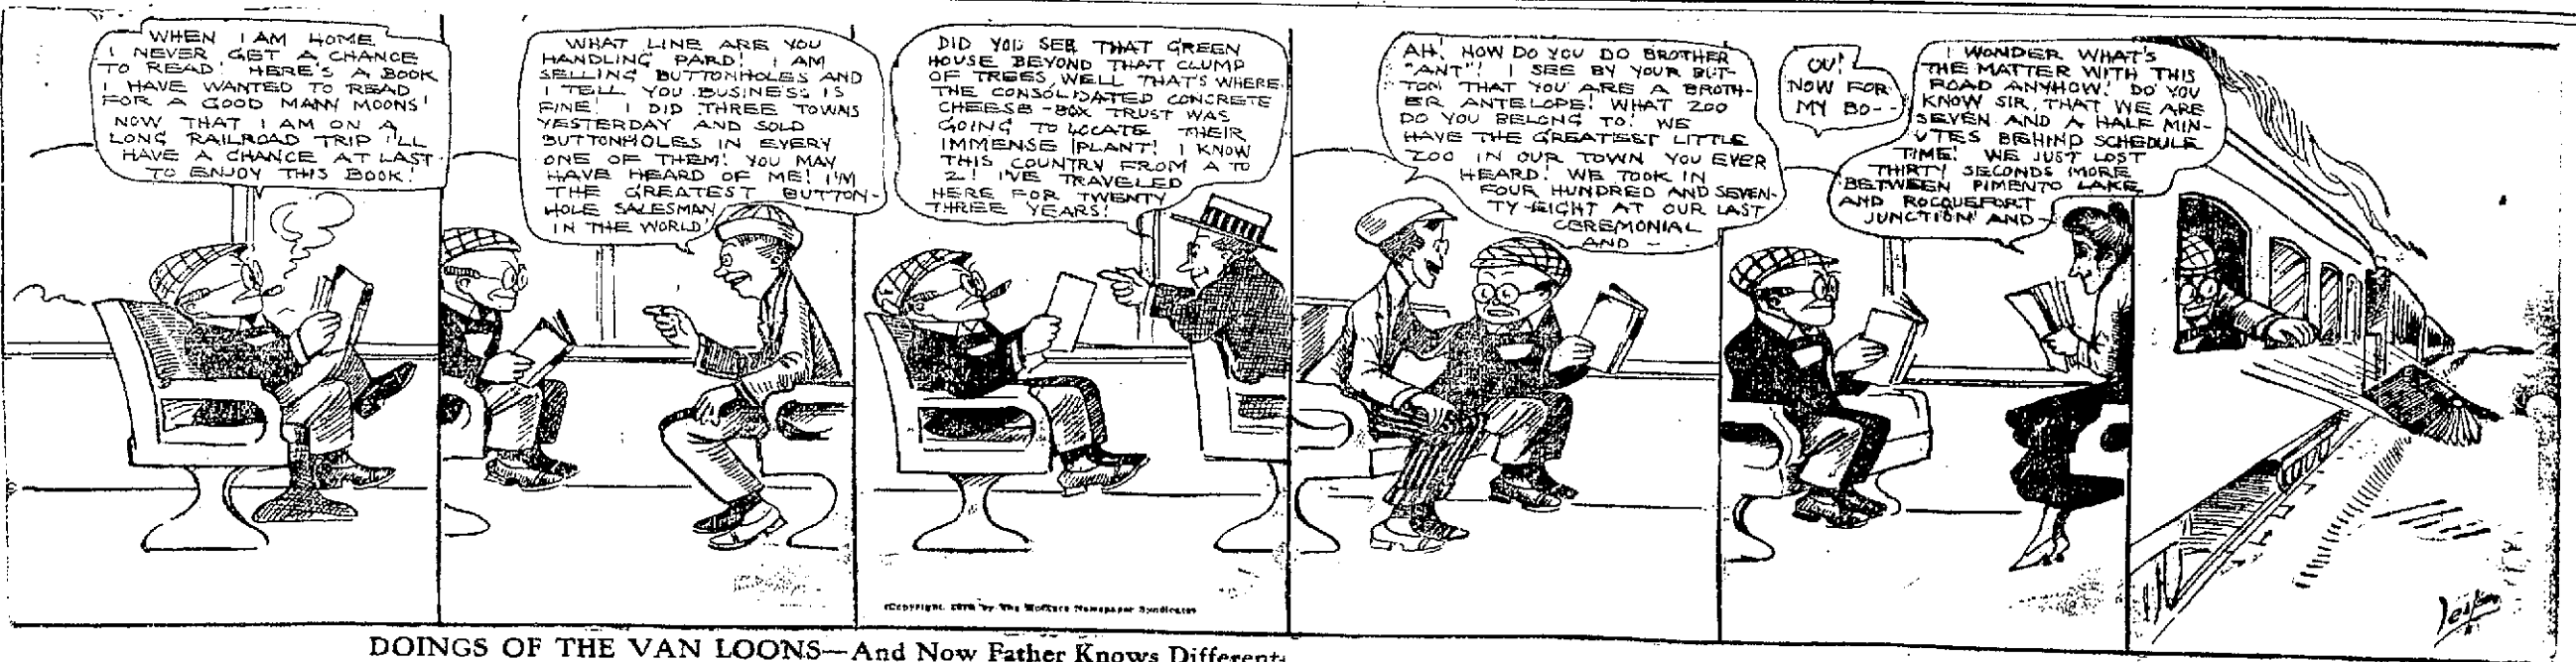

I thought of that immortal bit of sunshine for the thousandth time yesterday. My small nephew, who was much disgruntled because he couldn't get on with the rest of the family, had come out to play with a portentous frown on his brow.

He came in half an hour later, excited and enthusiastic. "Come out and see what I've got," he said, and went out and found that the treasure he referred to was a small green worm on a leaf.

"Watch!" he commanded. He pushed the worm off the leaf and it dropped but kept itself from falling all the way to the ground by a tiny cable which it fastened to the leaf.

He had been studying The Worm. "Look at him," cried the exhibitor. "He says that out of his mouth and now see what he does."

THE NEW CLARION

By... WILL N. HARBEN

Copyright, 1914, by Harper & Brothers

"I see," Howard muttered in what was almost a groan. "They are not even going to give me personally a chance to work up proof of my innocence. I'll be wholly dependent on my friends, and that hurts—that cuts to the quick. But, above all—let me say it now, Uncle Abner—I shall think more of your pain and my mother's than all the rest put together."

"You won't suffer long," Abner gulped. "Me an' Billy an' Pole Baker will turn the earth upside down or find the guilty man. All we want you to do is to be patient an' trust us. Keep your soul pure an' sweet under this calamity."

There was a step on the stair below. "They are coming," Howard said.

"Yes, that's them," Abner agreed. The next minute Jeff Dill, the sheriff, a tall, thin man of middle age, and Jim Tibbs, his deputy, a young man, came in, their faces set grimly. Dill let his shrilling glance fall on Howard's steady eyes.

"I reckon you know why we've come, Howard," he began awkwardly.

Howard nodded. "Yes, I know."

"The Lord knows I hate my part of it," Dill went on, with averted eyes. "Nobody knows better 'n me an' Jim here what a tough customer Fred Craig was. If you hadn't done it somebody else would have been sure sooner or later to."

"Stop!" Abner flared up. "That's a party way for an officer to talk. Howard ain't been found guilty yet, thank God."

"I'm sorry," Dill said, in no little confusion. "It is reported out in town that Howard has admitted it to several, an' naturally I thought—"

"Well, he ain't admitted it to nobody," Abner fumed. "He's as innocent of it as I am. You kin hear black is white in a town full of fatliers like this un. Folks want to believe the worst they kin agin anybody that's tryin' to do right an' rise above the common level."

"Never mind, Dill," Howard put in bravely. "It is natural for you to believe I did it, and no harm has been done. I'm ready to go with you."

Dill fumbled a parcel wrapped in brown paper and tied with a piece of twine. As he unrolled it the links of a steel chain clinked and a pair of new handcuffs came into view.

"Will that be necessary?" Howard asked, forcing a smile. "I don't intend to try to—to get away."

"I'm afraid it is, Howard," the sheriff returned. "Oh, it's all right," Howard said quickly. "I am no better than any other prisoner." And as he spoke he extended his arms. He was wearing a thin office coat, and Dill glanced from it to another hanging from a nail on the wall.

"If you want to put on yore other coat," he said, "you'd better do it before the cuffs are on. You can't get yore arms through the sleeves unless you do."

"I see," Howard's eyes met Abner's. The old man's held a stare that was too full of pain to be described.

"Do you happen to know if my mother is in town?" Howard asked the sheriff.

"No, she ain't yet," was the reply; "but somebody passed yore pa an' her on the road just now a mile or so back, an' that's way me an' 'trows decided to hurry. I didn't think you'd like to let her see you go through town like this."

"You are right," Howard answered. Abner remained in the office. As the clatter of steps died away from the stairs, and the fainter ones from the sidewalk below, he sat down at his table and raised his hands to his dead-white face.

"Lord God Almighty," he prayed. "Thou who rulest the universe an' takest account of the happenin's on all thy countless planets, as well as on this tiny ball of our'n, give me faith, strength an' courage in this black hour."

"Help thou my unbelief!" Give me strength an' show me the way to fight this awful wrong agin that pore boy, who shovels is yore child of anybody's."

Some one came in, and, looking up, Abner saw Lizzie Swayne putting her hat on a shelf above her desk. She was sobbing softly.

The news of Howard Tinsley's arrest spread rapidly through the town and out into the country. Nothing else was mentioned where persons would meet each other on the roads or meet face to face in the streets.

Some of Howard's social friends were gathered in the old-fashioned town hall at a rehearsal of a drama, which was to be given in benefit of a fund which was being raised to improve the condition of the Confederate soldiers' graveyard, which, full of unmarked mounds, lay just outside the town.

Cora Langham had agreed to take a part, and with some of the other players sat in the auditorium when Frank Raymond came in hurriedly.

"It is all up with Howard," he announced. "They've just taken him on to jail."

Cora turned white and had a sensation like that of fainting, but so great was the interest in what Raymond was saying that no one noticed her condition. That part of the cast who were behind the cracked and warped scenery studying their lines left the stage and gathered around Frank, listening breathlessly to his description of their friend's humiliation.

The young ladies, as a rule, stood out for Howard's innocence, but the young men remained silent.

Presently the stage director called them to order, and those who were needed went behind the scenes. Cora found herself alone with Raymond.

"I'm telegraphing it to all my papers," he said. "It is a big item. Editors all over the state are watching Howard's work and quoting him."

When Raymond had gone Cora managed to leave the hall unnoticed. She had never felt so queer before. In fact, she was half dazed. At the foot of the stairs she met her mother, who had come for her.

"I want to see you, dear," Mrs. Langham said in suppressed excitement. "Let's go to the hotel. Hold your head up. Don't you see that group at the postoffice? They will all be looking at us."

"Why should they look at us?" Cora asked listlessly.

"Because they will. They even stared at me, and when they see us together they'll stare more than ever. Come on! I'll explain what I mean later. Don't look at them. You've got yourself into this, now you've got to get out of it."

"I don't know what you mean, mother," Cora said feebly as she was hurried across the street.

"Well, I know what I mean, if you don't," Mrs. Langham answered impatiently. "Come on!"

CHAPTER XIX.

In a Prison Cell.

MRS. LANGHAM led her daughter straight to her room, and when they were inside she closed the door and sank into a chair, panting from her rapid walk.

"What is it, mother?" Cora demanded.

"You ought to understand, heaven knows!" Mrs. Langham cried. "Haven't you heard about Howard Tinsley?"

"Yes, but what?"

"Well, you have ordinary sense, I'm sure," Mrs. Langham flared out. "This whole town and a few even down at Rome have been connecting your name with that boy's for the last two months. I said nothing because you've had harmless affairs with all sorts of young men everywhere we've ever spent the summer. But this is different. You've entertained him at our house. The Atlanta papers, because he was a sort of editor, made mention of his visit to us. We are tied up in this terrible affair, I tell you. Your father will be furious enough to disown you, and folks in the hotel here are actually asking me if you and that young jailbird are not engaged."

Stunned beyond utterance over what had happened prior to this trade, Cora sank into a chair near a window. She could think of only one thing now, and that was the calamity which had befallen her friend.

"Why don't you talk? Say something, for God's sake!" Mrs. Langham groaned. "What are we going to do?"

"Do? Why, mother, what can we do? It is not our fault. We can't help what—"

"We can do something, and we must do something, and without delay," the older woman broke in. "We can pack as quickly as possible and get away from this silly town. The papers will announce our return to Atlanta, and the public will at least know that we are not here backing the man up, no matter what the gossips may try to make out of his past attentions to you."

"If we stay here they will say you are heartbroken. And who do you think would care to marry a girl under a cloud like that?"

"So you would have me turn against him the moment he is in trouble," Cora answered. "Howard will know why we left town, and that will add to his humiliation. He may be innocent, mother, but he is not a genius either."

"Of course he would deny it! What fool wouldn't under the circumstances? Don't argue with me, Cora. I'm your mother, and right now I have a clearer head than you have. You will live to see the day you will be glad I forced you to be sensible. We've got to get away today on the first train."

"Do you mean to say that you actually want to stay?" Mrs. Langham exclaimed, rising and striding heavily to her daughter's chair and standing over her.

"I don't know what I want," Cora muttered despondently. "I don't—don't know how I feel toward him. I don't know my own heart. I don't know that I have a heart like most girls, but I know I am sorry for Howard and do not want to accuse him by running away like this. His other friends—"

Cora was thinking in dismay of Mary Trumbley—"will not turn against him."

"What if they don't?" burst from the desperate matron's lips. "What have you got to do? You've got to get out of it."

"I don't know what you mean, mother," Cora said feebly as she was hurried across the street.

"Well, I know what I mean, if you don't," Mrs. Langham answered impatiently. "Come on!"

"So you would have me turn against him the moment he is in trouble," Cora answered.

they got at stake? Who ever heard of them outside of this little town? It is different with you. The papers will want to make as much sensation as they can out of it. I see the line they will pursue. They will say that a popular Atlanta girl is staying here to be near to him, taking flowers and delicacies to his cell every day. You've got to be sensible."

Out-of-breath Mrs. Langham paused. Cora sat mute, pale and almost quivering for several minutes. Then she arose. She drew herself up to her full height, and, going to her bureau, she looked at her face in the mirror. Taking up a powder puff, she applied some pink powder to her cheeks and gently touched it with her handkerchief.

Cora faced her mother calmly. "Yes, I've got to decide—I've got to be sensible and have it over with," she said deliberately. "He and I are not engaged. He has never even said in so many words that he loved me. It was just a game, mother; but it was the most interesting one I was ever in. I know his worth, and if he were to tell me he is innocent I'd believe him. I have been spotted all my life, but I long for something more genuine and deeper than I have ever had. Every other man that is attracted to me has been attracted by my position and money, but it was not so with Howard. All along I have seen that he despised what I have. All along I have seen that if I could have thrown it away and become of my own volition, as poor as he is for his sake, he would have loved me. But I am not unselfish enough. There is a streak of the practical—the habit of grasping the safe side—in me which came from you or father, or both, that holds me in check."

"You needn't be afraid that I will act foolishly," she went on. "I loathe myself for it, but when I heard of the murder and the likelihood of Howard's arrest my first thought was of myself. I shall look out for our interests as carefully as you would."

"You've got a lot more sense than I gave you credit for having," Mrs. Langham breathed, in relief.

"I have less heart, that's all," Cora said bitterly. "I begin to think that the possession of material advantages in life means doing without something finer and more lasting. I got that from Howard. He reads, and I don't. I'll either not marry at all or I'll marry without deep love or even admiration. Mother, Mary Trumbley—the girl you admitted—loves Howard unselfishly. She would go to jail with him today if she had a chance. It may be that he will establish his innocence. It may be that she will help him do it, and then—"

"They will marry and be happy ever afterward," Mrs. Langham made the last in sheer elation over her daughter's precaution.

"Yes," Cora replied, "and prove by a life of genuine happiness and wholesome simplicity that the thing you and I strive for and hold so tightly is worthless—absolutely worthless. But that is neither here nor there," Cora sighed. "All of us who are born to the possession of means enough to insure us a life of empty idleness simply go without a higher life. I heard a sermon once about Christ and the rich young man. I now see that the young man was simply bound hand and foot by the belief that he could not do without the very things I am clinging to. Christ was doing without wealth, and he knew the spiritual freedom of it. You and I and father and all our set in Atlanta are slaves. A person striving to acquire money would laugh at this statement, but one striving for spiritual possessions would know what I mean. I am swaying between two desires. I'm tired and sick—youth as I am, I'm tired and sick of the life we live. The lives of these mountain people contrasted to my own make my heart ache from sheer emptiness. Something tells me that if I had been born here of poor parents Howard Tinsley and I would be fighting the obstacles of life side by side."

"For heaven's sake, what is the matter with you?" Mrs. Langham interrupted. "You are not like yourself."

"I really don't want to be like my old self," Cora answered, her pretty lips twitching. "But you need not be afraid. I shall do as you wish. I shall do it because there is nothing else for a woman in my position to do—because, in a sense, it is my duty."

Dinner Stories

Nearly every one of his friends had suffered from the caprices of the practical joker. Happily the joker had weak points of his own. One of them was a dislike of night air. One morning about 2 o'clock there came

"Yes," Cora replied, "and prove by a life of genuine happiness and wholesome simplicity that the thing you and I strive for and hold so tightly is worthless—absolutely worthless. But that is neither here nor there," Cora sighed. "All of us who are born to the possession of means enough to insure us a life of empty idleness simply go without a higher life. I heard a sermon once about Christ and the rich young man. I now see that the young man was simply bound hand and foot by the belief that he could not do without the very things I am clinging to. Christ was doing without wealth, and he knew the spiritual freedom of it. You and I and father and all our set in Atlanta are slaves. A person striving to acquire money would laugh at this statement, but one striving for spiritual possessions would know what I mean. I am swaying between two desires. I'm tired and sick—youth as I am, I'm tired and sick of the life we a tremendous thumping at his front door. The joker hopped out of bed, opened his front window, and leaned out.

"In heaven's name, what is the matter?" he asked.

"One of your windows is open," said the man on the sidewalk.

"Which one?" said the joker.

"The one you have stuck your head through," was the reply.

Albert Chevalier, the English actor, tells a good story about his early days on tour. After appearing one night at a small provincial hall, he told the manager that he did not expect to get such a cordial reception as the audience had given him.

"What makes you say that?" said the manager. "I did not notice it."

"Didn't you hear them banging their walking sticks and umbrellas on the floor?" asked Chevalier.

"That wasn't applause," replied the manager. "The postoffice is on the floor above us, and they were stamping letters for the mail."

A certain house in a western town improved so much in comfort and appearance that a visitor shrewdly surmised that the son of the house, a lazy, good-for-nothing, had turned over a new leaf. He inquired about it.

"Yes, sir, my son's got a job now," said the smiling old mother. "Gels good money, too. All he has to do is to go twice a day to the circus and put his head in the lion's mouth. The rest of the time he has to himself."

H-E-L-P!

Competent Help is something that is absolutely necessary to insure the success of any business.

When it comes to filling a vacant position, whether it be from a department manager down to a small office job care should be used in selecting the most promising candidate among the numerous applicants. Anybody can hire help, but not everybody can hire competent help. Many a business is jeopardized at a most critical time by the fact that one of its important employees leaves suddenly without the proper one to take his or her place.

The Gazette Want Ads are seen by 35,000 people every day. Among these can be found the most promising candidates for the vacant position. Mr. Fifield of the Fifield Lumber Co., advertised a short time ago for help and he received the following response: 5 calls before six o'clock that evening at office; 3 phone calls before six; 2 phone calls after supper and 6 calls the following morning. Surely a good opportunity from the large number of applicants to obtain a competent man.

If you need help phone Want Ad to the Gazette.

Everyday Wisdom

BY DON HEROLD

THE BIRTH OF THE CUSTOM
 TIES ought to be considered as jewelry. They are not clothes. We could go around without ties and be just as warm and just as modest and just as discreet as we are with them. There would not be any more bronchitis or pneumonia if there were no ties. A tie hasn't any practical purpose.

Woman put the tie on man's neck. The first woman who put the first tie on a man's neck had to hit him on the head with a rock. As she lay prostrate and unconscious and powerless on the ground, she put her knee on his chest and tied a piece of baby ribbon around his neck, and when he awoke she sent him off to Sunday-school.

Ties are the by-product of everything in the world. They are made out of the scraps of everything. When a davenport manufacturer has a remnant of tapestry left over with birds and tree branches smeared all over it, he starts a rage for tapestry ties. Ties are made out of remnants of rugs, petticoats, coffin-linings, wall paper, shirts and window curtains. Ties are the hash of the textile industry.

Some men have become very fond of ties, and have as many as 1,500 hooked over the mirror of their chamber.

Dressing Up
 It was a dark, rainy day. Marguerite had been cross all the morning, for she couldn't think of a thing to do. At last her mother went up in the attic to an old-fashioned trunk, unlocked it and took out some of her clothes of long ago. They were still pretty and bright—A green skirt, yellow scarf, and a hat with bright roses and a feather. Mother also found a fan. "Now, Marguerite," she said, "you can play lady; and remember, a lady must be smiling and sweet-tempered." Marguerite immediately changed from a cross little girl to one who looked as happy as the little girl in this picture. Color this little girl's dress, her hat, fan, and scarf. Also the wall, floor and the mirror. Have you ever dressed up like this? Try it.

SOX INVADE EAST; WHAT WILL THEY DO?

Pennant Winning Ball With Yankees Necessary to Keep Chicagoans in First Division.

Janesville followers of the Chicago White Sox will watch with more than usual interest the progress of the American leaguers through the east. They opened at New York today, and before returning to the west will have played a schedule of twenty-one games. The trip calls for seventeen, but in addition there are three postponements to be played with Boston and one in Washington.

Of particular interest will be the games this week with the Yankees, present leaders of the American league. Both teams are going good, have lots of confidence, and from today until Monday some great playing is listed for these teams.

What will the Sox do against New York? is the question among their following here. General opinion is that they will leave Broadway with the majority of the games to their credit. Locally fans are well pleased with the Sox. Their record during the past six weeks which has pulled them from the second berth in the second division to third place, and only three and one-half games behind the leaders, against an even eight six weeks ago, has made local fans confident of the ability of the Sox. A New York victory today and with Boston winning over Cleveland would drop the Sox to fourth place, since Boston is but half a game behind the Chicagoans.

Manager Rowland was expected to start Russell against the Yankees. But Weaver was to go back to short. The new man, Von Kunitz, the Cincinnati lawyer, was to get his tryout at third. Jackson, although not fully recovered from his injury of the fourth, is feeling fine. The Sox slug-batters, the American leaguers, who have been the Sox's mainstay, have points above Tris Speaker, the Cleveland wonder. Jackson has secured ninety-six hits for forty-one runs in 231 times at bat. Speaker, in 253 times up, made 160 hits, good for fifty-three runs.

CUBS CLIMB; BEAT PIRATES WITH BAT

Chicago Team in First Division Now After Taking Pittsburgh Last Game by 4 to 3 Score.

The Cubs beat Pittsburgh yesterday, took a first division berth and also fattened their individual and team batting averages. It was a 4 to 3 game with the Chicagoans on the long end. Williams and Mann showed the stogie town bunch some classy swatting and their hits, with the errors of the home boys, paved the way for victory. Pittsburgh has a find in Compson, who was secured last week from the Boston Nationals. He robbed Williams of what would have been the Cub's second home run of the day with a wonderful catch. At that Williams hit next to the longest drive ever made in the Pirate park. Hendrix opened for the Cubs, but a late assault made necessary Lavender going on to save the day. He did. Miller and Harmon failed to hold the Cubs, who drew six hits off the pair. Pittsburgh also got the same number.

Neil Brady.

Neil Brady is well up among the lead of Association twirlers and is a dependable winner for Columbus. Perhaps Rudy Hulsvitt's boys won't get the A. A. hunting, but more of the work that Brady is doing would bring them near it.

MORRIS MILLER

Muggsy McGraw plans to make a pitcher out of George Kelly. Kelly was a first baseman and then used in the outfield. But he is said to have a wonderful arm and the ideal build of a successful pitcher and so McGraw is going through with the experiment. All there is required of Kelly now is that he learn how to pitch.

The North Carolina league has any number of left hand batters, but there are only two southpaw pitchers in the league. Charlotte has six left handed batters and when Whitely, Asheville's star southpaw, pitched against the team recently he had just a lovely time.

Someone has doped it out that there are not so many bases being stolen in the big league. The reason is because of the fact that more southpaws are being used and these latter can keep the baserunners closer to first.

It appears that some of the independent teams in the southeast are paying players more for two or three games a week than Class AA teams get for a regular job. There is also the rumor that Alfred von Kunitz, who quit the Cincinnati Reds to practice law, is playing independent ball in North Carolina under the name of Alford.

Tris Speaker is sensitive about his age only when he isn't going at his top speed. The gray hairs, he says, have been with him since he was seven, and although he won't state his real age, he does say that he isn't yet thirty. But he might be an octogenarian and get away all right so long as he can play the ball he's been playing this season.

They don't have much to say about Fielder Jones as a manager these days in St. Louis although early this spring and before the season was under way the papers were told about how Jones could win a pennant with no team at all. He has just about that now, but appears to be not very near the pennant. Jones was said about how Fielder could win a pennant with no team at all. He has just about that now, but appears to be not very near the pennant. Jones was said about how Fielder could win a pennant with no team at all. He has just about that now, but appears to be not very near the pennant.

Clark Griffith is making an outfielder out of a pitcher. Instead of the other way about as McGraw is doing with one of his young pitchers. Griffith's idea seems to be the more reasonable one, anyway. Sam Rice is the boy Griffith means to work in the outfield mostly because Sam can handle the stick in a way that makes him of use in the game every day. He is fast, has a good arm of course and is as natural a hitter as one would wish to see.

There are lots of ball players who have started out as pitchers and then decided to take to the outfield. Jess Burkett, for instance, one of the best hitters that ever graced the game started out as a southpaw pitcher till Pat Tebeau saw how he could wallop with great ease and then used him in every game. Jack Stivetis was another example. He was a good enough pitcher but was effective mostly for his smolder and when this latter gave out he took to the outfield with great success, owing to his speed and his energy at bat. Babe Ruth now with the Boston Red Sox is a wonderful batter for a pitcher and will probably appear in the outfield when not on the slab.

It has come to be a very palmed report that is sure to appear periodically but it's true just the same that Hans Wagner in spite of his rare old years is playing one of the greatest games of his career. He is certainly the star performer of his team and he is twice as old as some of his teammates. On his last birthday Hans was forty-two. What's more he hasn't missed a game this season though he hasn't been without injuries. It takes an unusually severe hurt to keep Hans out of the running as he comes of the old school of ball players who worked hard on teams of a dozen men and had to play whether they were injured or not. Years have made Wagner indifferent to the average spike-wound.
